STAGE-COACH ADVENTURE. It was a coach and four, wherein they sat— Three of them, I mean—a bright sou hern girl, Warm, sunny, and voluptuous, and that Makes northern brains, you know, with passion whirl-And in our hero suddenly begat
Congenial warmth; and the touch of a curl,
And long, deep looking in each other's eye
Completed all. (I mean this course to try.)

The third of whom I spake, was Emma's sire-A fine old gentleman of torty five i His look was easy, and no lightning ire Shot from his eye, when did my hero strive (As he must do, you know, or sadly tire Of the long tedium of a silent drive.) To whisper conversation to the daughter-Asking, perhaps, if she drank tea or water.

And this, I think, a very good beginning
For one who (as my hero chanced to be)
Was studying the useful art of thinning Off mankind most philosophically— And had in hope the happiness of winning, Some future day, a medical degree; And then would he, safe mounted upon science, Bid Death and Quackery (one thing) defiance. He requires description:—his countenance
Was Southern perfectly in form and hue;
His locks were jet and then an eager glance,
Darker than natural, from an eye of blue,

Displayed most clearly the preponderance
Of passion over color: but its due
To optical philosophy to own
That thro' spectacles those bright glances shone.

He had an air insinuating yet
So dignified and serious, that fear
Would instantly a confidence beget;
And his most ardent kisses would appear
Friendly and fervent blessings; and but let
His fascinating voice once meet your ear,
You would never online his home a Northern ou would ne'er opine his home a Northern town, His name the unromantic one of Brown Yet so it was ; - and soon familiar grew

Our hero with the gentleman, and oft
(As certainly it was his duty to.)
Whisperrd a sentence agreeable and soft,
Doubtless, as the much blushing pleasure shew,
Unto the daughter, and then hemmed and coughed.
A cough, in such conjuncture as was this,
Is not, indeed, exceedingly amiss. And now the coach has made a sudden stand, To substitute fresh beasts for better speed —

For horses' limbs wont last forever, and For horses' limbs wont last forever, and
The passengers emerged; and there was need
Of an extra coach to meet the great demand
For seats; but would was our pair indeed
To find but one seat in each coach remained For them ,- but seperation they disdained. Ride with our hero Emma could and would;

"One seat for them was sure sufficient, quite; And she was small," – our hero understood, And helped her in, in manner so polite, And so familiar, that the inmates viewed His gentleness a brother's, therefore right. The inmates were six prim old maids in wire, But, (how imprudent !) not Miss Emma's sire.

And now our hero made the proposition (Which, as the space was small was very kind,) That she should six upon his knee; omission
To comply would be ungrateful—her mind,
Doubtless, thus argued, and her new position,
Extremely pleasant, soon she come to find,
The cloud of spinsters elevate their eyes,
And very audible, six wond'rous "whys!"

"Oh, are we safe?" asks one in under tone,
As (merely to support his burden fair.)
Our hero's arm doth guide her tender zone;
I would like to see the impudence would dare
Thus circle my slight waist—altho' I own
If for support, 't would not be an affair
I should so much and absolutely dread,
But not deem perfectly disinterested." And thus the poor old ladies groaned, believing

And thus the poor old ladies groaned, believing
No brotherly affection was like that;—
"That shameful girl was, they were certain. Eveing,
And that dark scoundrel darker deeds was at."
He offered fruit—"he could not be deceiving,
So very kind and gracious did he that."
Then laces wriggled into smiles upon it,
And clashing nods made shapeless, sleeve and bonnet. Now 'twas "quite pretty" to behold the twain
"So fond, so innocent, so young and fair."
Enjoy themselves—"they might ne'er meet again"

They'd said so-" oh, reflection of despair! Sighed an antique, but suddenly a pain Warned her for rising trouble to prepare; And just as she was growing quite pathetic, She groaned, and cried "oh, sister, the emetic!" But journeys have an end, so must have tales, The coach has reached his town - our hero sighs, And most lamentably his fate bewails;

Cursing the coachman and, with science wise, The evils of fast driving he details:— He looks at Emma—tears suffuse his eyes,— And she, poor girl. (as proper maidens can,) Weeps very audibly - behind her fan. Our hero vielded .- into the hotel Conducted his fair charge—there met her sire, Who bade him, graciously, a kind farewell, Then had the true discretion to retire: For had he seen the usage that befell

Emma it might have roused paternal ire. For, when the ignoble, vulga had retired, They rushed - by one resistless impulse fired, Into (oh, shame! thou " rara avis," how Into (oh, shame! thou "rara avis," how Could you desert them guileless hitherto?)
Into I say (pray, modest reader, now
With fitting frown thy countenance indue)
Each other's arms!—nny smooth thine angry brow,
Reader! the same would have been done by you.
Emma sighed forth, "I feel a great deal better;"
And our hero vowed he never would forget her.

And thus itended, and my tale is told, But wonderful for nothing but its truth Away the rattling coach with Emma rolled, --Our hero mused -- Is not my form uncouth? Do I a fay's enchanted sceptre hold,-Thus to impress the maidens guileless youth?"

He met the glass-" horrid identity

DOURNEYMAN WANTED-By JOHN WI.

BOSTON MORNENG POST.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1836.

" In the state of things at present existing in this country, my personal wishes are, to withdraw my name from the place it occupies before the pub-DANIEL WEBSTER.

" A vote of the Senate of the United States has attached to my name a disgrace which I am fully convinced no time or no efforts of mine will ever be able to efface."—Extract from Gen. Harrison's Letter dated July 16, 1816. See Niles' Reg., Vol. 10, page 424.

TO THE WHIGS OF MASSACHUSETTS.

When a rogue, the better to practise deception and to prey upon the honest part of the community, clothes himself with a new, and, of course, false appellation, the assumption-to say nothing of its criminality-is intolerably mean. Now, my good whig friends, tell us wherein the practice of your leaders differs from that of the rogue? At every presidential campaign a new purty engagmen is adopted; not a name expressive of any great political principles, but some taking appellation or phrase, which, however good in itself, is like an infected garment, ever after shunned by all who love their country and its free institutions. An honest party, like an honest man, has but one name; neither practise requery nor deceit, of course neither change their names. The desperate and unprincipled only shield themselves behind a borrowed appellative. John M. Case took the name of George B. Warren to obtain money dishonestly; the federalists took the name of Whigs to obtain power dishonestly. Wherein lies the difference? Do you not suspect, at times, there is something "rotten in Denmark," when you find your leaders so often demanding a change of its party appellative ?-Has it ever occurred to you that if their principles were sound, the name is impraterial? And in taking a new name, have you ever supposed you were adopting new principles? Certainly not. Why, then, take a new name? The rogue can answer this, and so would your feaders, but for self-implication. You have, doubtless, heard of the ass clothed in the skin of a lion, and you know very well that the animal was none the less an ASS for being thus disguised; nor are your leaders, my good whig friends, any the less enemics to republican institutions for occasionally wearing a name which of right belongs only to the patriot and the honest man.

In our last communication, falsehood was charged upon your leaders. An allegation so serious ought not to be believed upon the naked assertion of any man, whatever may be his credit with the public. Facts should be adduced; and here we might content ourselves by referring to the whig papers in general, and to some of them in particular. We might point you to the columns of that paper which so recently charged upon Mr Secretary Woodbury opinions which he never held, and statements which he never made; but it is unnecessary, -that paper is without credit: it even outrages whig morality ! Our game lies higher. Call to mind the several reports made in Congress, by your leaders, upon the Bank, the Post Office, and other subjects in 1834-5. On the Bank, especially, statements so grossly false were contained in the report of the Senate's committee, of which Mr Webster was one, that, on its presentation by Mr Tyler, of Virginia, Mr Benton exposed, impromptu, a few of its palpable falsehoods in a manner so clear and convincing, that the document was immediately laid on the table, and never after called up by the committee. They dared not do it. They found, for the twentieth time, that the "lion of the west" was not to be caught napping, and your whig committee pocketed the charge of falsehood, so boldly made, as meekly and cringingly as ever slave received the lash of the task-master.

The whig committee on the Post Office were in no better condition. As if the introduction of a single truth into that report would have damned their reputations to everlasting infamy, the members of that committee falsified every fact connected with the Post Office Department, and presented one hideaus mass of error and misrepresentation, so gross and barefaced, that the American people, disgusted with such chicanery and double-dealing, found excuse even for the errors of the Postmaster General. But these were the misrepresentations of committees in their collective capacities. Let us now see if individuals among your leaders are more conscientious when standing alone. Has Mr Webster, the great "expounder of the constitution," always been free from the sin of downright (misstatement ?) falsehood ?-When he declared in the senate-chamber that he had official information that an officer was appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury to superintend the selected banks, and that this officer was compensated by a salary fixed by the Executive, did he not know there was not one word of truth in the statement ? Had he not before him, at the very moment, Mr Taney's official declaration that no such officer existed in the Department? Certainly he had. Thus we might quote from the speeches and reports of your leaders a volume of falsehoods, all tending to show that deception is their great engine, and that through it they hope to crush the present administration and place themselves in power. And can you, my good whig friends, be accessary to their design? Are you willing to lose all to gratify the ambition of a few unprincipled demagogues?

It is certain that many of you are democratic in fe ling, that you earnestly desire reform where abuse exists. But when did one of your leaders ever think or talk of reform? Who conceived the plan of reducing the representation of Massachusetts? Who opposed the Ten Million Bank? Who labored in the destruction of Law Monopoly? Who attacked the Medical Society of Massachusetts? And who, with the energy of a giant, is destroying that excrescence upon our judiciary, the Libel Law of this State? Have your leaders had any thing to do in all these important matters ? No, my good whig friends, they have not. They are for privilege-the privilege of riding you, and of fattening upon the sweat of your indus-SAMUEL ADAMS. try. Such is whiggism!

Great cry and little wool .- The sapient editors of the Atlas have been hunting through the legal reports, in the hope of finding something, from which, by distortion, misrepresentation, or some other whig method, they might bring a "railing accessation" against Judge Morton. But their labor has been in vain: nothing has been found. And what, gentle reader, do you think they have found? It would puzzle you to guess. They have discovered, that Judge Morton, as a counsellor, previous to his being on the bench, in arguing for his client, or in giving a professional opinion, admitted to be law what every lawyer ows to be law. Thins of that, Master Brooke; that Judge Morton, as a lawyer, should presume to dec'are to be law, what actually was law! And, stranger still, that "the little cock sparrows of the Atlas," should array this against him as a fault, a crime, on account of which he has rendered himself unfit to be governor of this State! This is a most astonishing age-and we are a most astonishing people-and the editors of the Atlas are most astonishing editors!

The Atlas says, that in 2d Pickering, p. 17, Judge Morton, as counsellor, is represented as running analogies between horses and slaves-as stating that slaves may be seized without a warrant; -that the Constitution of the United States was made for the citizens, the people, and not for slives; -that it gives citizens a right to hold slaves; -and that it secures to slaves no rights as citizens." Now, we would ask, what man of common sense and comm n knowledge does not know all this to be true? Whether it be just, and humane, and moral, and consistent with our political and religious principles, is another thing. With this, Judge Morton had then nothing to do. He was required to state what the law actually was, not what he wished it to be. He did state what it actually was, and thus performed his duty. The Atlas does not dare to say such is not the law. Had he stated the law differently, he would have been incorrect, and unfaithful to his client.

In many things it may be truly said there is an analogy between slaves and horses. They are both property, and may be bought and sold, and may be whipped, and otherwise ill-treated, be ill-clothed, ill-fed, and compelled to labor at the discretion of the owner. The owner of a slave is not, however, permitted by law to put him to death; and here the analogy does not exist. 2. Slaves who have run away, may, according to an act of Congress. be seized without a warrant. The constitutionality of this act has been lately questioned in New York. 3. The constitution was made by and for the people, and not for the slaves. Who denies this ?- and how could it be otherwise? 4. It also recognizes the existing right of citizens to hold slaves, in those states where the state laws permit it. Who doubts this to be law, or would censure Judge Morton for stating it to be law? 5. The U.S. constitution secures to slaves no rights as citizens. This is also true. Slaves are not authorized to vote, nor to sue or be sued: nor are they forbidden so to do. The constitation left slaves as it found them-it did not meddle with them-and the question of slavery was left to the states. No constitution could possibly have been adopted, in which an interference with slavery should have been authorized. There was, it is true, one advantage secured in favor of humanity-one point gained. Congress was authorized to abolish the slave trade; and it has done it. The trade is contrary to law, though it is still undoubtedly carried on to a great extent by citizens of the United States.

In making filse accusations, what will the Atlas say next? Judge Morton's character is so pure, his talents so eminent, his fitness so unimpeachable, that they strive to injure him in vain. The futile attempt only recoils upon themselves. Vipers, ye bite a file.

The delicate-handed Farmer .- The subjoined is a good hit at the farmer whig candidate:-

Dreadful Calamity .- The whigs say that Harrison shook hands with so many people, while in New York, that he absolutely made his hand sore, and was obliged to put on a glove-a striking evidence of his being a real farmer candidate! What will the "huge paws" say of making one's hand sore with squeezing the soft and delicate hands of a few hundred, or thousand if you please, of the whig aristocracy?—(or of being squeezed by them, if that suns the case better) This is probably the severest wound Harrison ever received in any conflict. 'Tis wonderful that a man of his prudence should so expose himself. Doubt'ess he will be unable to discharge the duties of his clerkship for some time, unless, perchance, he can wield a pen with his left hand !- Vermont Pat.

Riot and Cruelty .- From the Haverhill Banner we attended a military parade at Goffstown, N. H. On old Past, Present and Future to fight it out. their return, they drove up to a house, formerly a tavern. Not finding, as they expected, a little rum, they commenced gambling and swearing in the piazza, at the front of the house. The master of the house, accompanied with his brothers, stepped out and ordered the rioters from his enclosures. One of the party then told him to mind his business, and aimed a blow at him with his umbrella, which was warded off by his brother. Upon this the latter was attacked by the heated pack, crying kill him, who, to escape their rage, went towards a neighboring house, but was soon overtaken, and knocked down a number of times, while fighting for his life, and beaten till he was almost dead. The people of the village soon turned out and succeeded in stopping the riot and in taking several of the vagabonds.

English Fashionables .- The English Court papers say that '36 will be the most brilliant year in the annals of fashion, upon record. "During the reign of the last George," says a London paper, "we had occasion to notice the peculiar character imprinted upon fashionable society by the want of a female Court; and the fact that all the leaders of the fashionable world at that period, who distinguished themselves by their hospitalities, were single men. But the whole aspect of things is changed. Not only the magnificent entertainments of St James's and Windsor Castle have arisen, but the peculiar interest attached to the position of the Heiress Presumptive, and the distinguished circle formed around her by the Duchess of Kent, have served to impart a new tone to the manners of the times. Secondary to the e illustrious hosts, but first among the aristocracy, may be cited the Duchesses of Sutherland and Buccleuch, whose entertainments of the present season have been unparalleled in point of taste and costliness; nor can we remember any moment of the annals of the great world, when the sway of fashion was assigned to the hands of two personages so eminently distinguished by youth and beauty, as well as by exemplary propriety of manners and morals."

Stealing Papers .- The Public Ledger contains an amusing account of the detection of a wealthy gentleman in stealing a newspaper. For the two last years or more, some one had been in the constant practice of taking the papers which belonged to a certain establishment without leaving an equivalent in exchange. A conspicuous individual was for some time suspected, but on account of his respectability, he was not charged with the theft. A few evenings since, being seated at one of the windows, he was seen by several gentlemen to slyly fold a newspaper, and after cautiously looking round, he hurriedly thrust it i to his pocket. When asked whether he had seen such a paper, he replied, with great nonchalunce, that "a gentheman was reading it a few minutes previous at the table." The interrogator rejoined, that the gentleman who was reading it had put it into his pocket. "Then he must be a damned rascal," replied he who had taken it, and the application of the epithet was unanimously agreed to. Upon this he began to think that he was suspected, and was seen to take the very identical paper from its hiding place and lay it on the table.

The story that King Bill had ordered the Duke of Bedford's bust to be removed from the gallery at Windsor, because the Duke subscribed to the O'Connell fund, is all a humbug.

THE LLECTIONS.

We published a summary account of the great democratic victory in Pennsylvania yesterday, the correctness of which is confirmed by the papers received since.

We have official returns of the election in New Jersey, which show the democratic strength there to be overpowering-the Assembly stands thirty-one to nineteen.

Democrats of No. 9, be not overreached by the foes of your principles—be as industrious in circulating truth as your opponents are in spreading falsehood-let your committees upon your fancied strength for victory, but work, WORKor you are doomed to a mortifying and unnecessary defeat.

The effect of the multiplicity of banks is to raise the nominal price of every thing, and panics terrify with the apprehension of a scarcity which does not exist.

Rescue from Drowning.—On Monday, about noon, a sail boat was observed to capsize about half way between Foster's wharf and the Castle. It was shortly righted,

It was blowing hard, the tide was unfavorable, and there was little hope of saving the poor fellow; but Captain Jordan, of the schooner Echo, Capt. Curtis, of the schooner Polly, Capt. J. Harvey, and four others, jumped into a boat at the wharf and pulled away to his assistance. They were some time reaching him, but had the satisfaction to find him alive, although scarcely animated. They took him into their boat, covered him with their jackets, brought him sate to land, and revived him. POLICE COURT .- A House and Sabbath Breaker .- Two of the commandments were broken at once by Jacob Frye, on unday afternoon. He entered the rear of Mr E. Barber's house 266 Washington street, while the family were at church, and stole therefrom a piece of broadcloth worth $75. Several persons who saw him walking off with the roll under his arm, suspected that he was a thief and pointed him out to Constable Clough; but friend Clough is rather a rigid sort of a Christian, and, as such, conscientiously averse to working on the Sabbath, and therefore deemed it would be a profanation of the day to arrest Frye. Mr J. E. Foster, however, had the curiosity to folow and watch his rendezvous, in Broad street, and on Monday gave information to Constable Hunt, who secured him yesterday morning. The cloth was found in the cock-loft of the house. He was committed for want of bail to the amount of value of $3000.

Jacob Phillips, alias Young, was caught by the clerk of a store in the overtact of stealing a vest from the door, but was very much "surprised that he should be arrested for stealing a vest, orresponding efforts. We believe he is the first Professor of Pugilism that has been brought up for a street brawl in this city. His predecessors have been distinguished for their prudence in this respect. "Such proceedings are but little calculated to advance the interests of the science," as the literary say, in other matters.

> For the Boston Morning Post. LECTURES ON THE FALLS OF NIAGARA.

Mr Editor:-Allow me to say a few words in behalf of the lectures on the Falls of Niagara, to be commenced at the Masonic Temple, this evening. My acquaintance Bernardo del Carpio.-A play, with this title, has with the qualifications of Mr Ingraham makes me desirous to assure the public that this is no catch-penny affair. During his frequent visits to the Falls, in the course of the character is adapted to the powers of Mr C. H. Eaton, last three years, I have reason to know that he has spared completeness to his information. He has seen them in all aspects and under all circumstances-in summer and winter-in sunshine and in storm-in mist and in moonlight -by night and by day. He has examined them from above and from below-from before and from behind-outside and inside-over and under-and I may say, literally, in the middle, and through and through ! He has considered them, moreover, geologically and theologically, and after many "hair-breadth 'capes and perils imminent," has brought away a valuable collection of specimens of their natural history and organic remains. During his absence his mind has still been occupied with his great theme. He has ransacked our best libraries, and consulted every thing that is known to have been written on the subject from the very earliest dates. His descriptions, therefore, may be relied upon to exhibit the same proverbial accuracy which has given a standard character to his maps and other works on Palestine. The copious variety of diagrams and transparencies which Mr I. brings to the illustration of his ity. By a new application of an old principle, and an intense illuminating power, these views are enlarged to an uncommon size, and are conceived and executed with great vividness and spirit. Not being quite so large, however, as the original, they cannot of course be ex ected to be quite so natural; and it is believed that it would be difficult, by colors only, without sound or motion, to convey more distinct conceptions of this sublime spectacle.

And those, who've often looked, now look the more. PHILO JOSEPHUS.

DIED.

At Watertown, 4th inst., Istac Dana Jr., 24. By the death of this excellent young man many fondly-cherished hopes have been laid in the dust. His childhood was marked by uncommon decility, affection and improvement. Around his opening years were gathered those happy promises which are justified by virtuous habits and religious principles. He had just entered on the business and duties of life, with the industry and the manly feelings which would have made him an honorable member of society. In the inscrutible providence of God, he was cut off while life was yet in its freshness; and his beloved friends, while they mourn his premature death, find rich consolation in connecting the thought of him with that world where ment and death shall be no more. RECOMMENDATIONS. Having been made acquainted with the medical qualities and witnessed the effects of "Dr Phelps' Arcanum," I feel much confidence in saying it is a preparation of medicine greatly superior to any thing of the kind, in curing those chronic discases for which it is intended, and recommend it to invalids in preference to any other article whatever.

SAMUEL I. MITCHELL, M. D.

New York, March 25, 1830. New York, March 25, 1830.

My knowledge of the properties and operation of the "Arcaum of Dr Phelps," justify me in saying that it is far superior o any depurative syrup with which I am acquainted. In the most obstinate and ambiguous deseases, it displays effects peculiarly surprising. In those affections that resist the skill of the physician, such as Rheumatism, Syphilis, Scrofuia, Ulcerations, and Diseases of the Skin, &c., I would recommend it as worthy of great confidence. JOHN D. GODMAN, M. D.

the physician, such as Rheumatism, Syphilis, Scroluia, Ulcerations, and Diseases of the Skin, &c., I would recommend it as worthy of great confidence. JOHN D. GODMAN, M. D. Philadelphia. Nov. 27, 1829.

For the last few years I have suffered excessively by a Billious Mercurial Disease, which has rendered me frequently unfit for duty, and confined me as often to my berth. My diease was the sequela of bud treatment, while in the more tropical latitudes, and laboring under an acute inflamation of the liver, and other Billiary organs. Prior and pubsequently to our arrival in this port, I have had recourse to a great variety of prescriptions, medicines and nostrums—among which, were a number of bottles of Swaim's Panacca, Potter's Catholicon, the Rob of Laffecteur, &c., but without any benefit.—Dr Phelps being at that time a student of medicine in the University of Pennsylvania, advised me to make use of a newly discovered medicine, the Arcanum, which he believed would succeed in relieving me, in consequence of the very signal effects himself and others had observed in its operation in various glandular diseases, that were otherwise considered incurable. I commenced its use accordingly, and it affords me pleasure to state, that for several months past, not a vestige of the original or secondary disease has been discoverable. I prize the medicine above all others with which I have ever been acquainted. It is both pleasant and I believe certain it its effects, as a remidy in a variety of chronic diseases, incident to tropical and other shad observed in the University of the Colombian Philadelphia, Jan. 5, 1835

GENT.—I cannot refrain from expressing my gratitude to you noffering me a bottle of Dr Phelps' Arcanum, as an experiment in my case of Rheumatism. I have been dreadfully affice months have scarcely been able to walk. I have used a dozen bottles of Swaim's Panacea, and found very little benefit from it. After taking the bottle of Arcanum, I found such a change in my whole system, that I was induced to try another, and to my surprise, the pains in my legs all disappeared, and the Ulcers in one have completely healed up, and I can walk more, and firmly believe it will make a complete cure of my dismore, and firmly believe it will make a complete cure of my dismore, and firmly believe it will make a complete cure of my dismore, and firmly believe it will make a complete cure of my dismore, and firmly believe it will make a complete cure of my dismore, and firmly believe it will make a complete cure of my dismore, and firmly believe it will make a complete cure of my dismore, and firmly believe it will make a complete cure of my dismore, and firmly believe it will make a complete cure of my dismore, and firmly believe it will make a complete cure of my dismore, and firmly believe it will make a complete cure of my dismore, and firmly believe it will make a complete cure of my dismore, and firmly believe it will make a complete cure of my dismore, and firmly believe it will make a complete cure of my dismore.

Extract of a letter from Dr Jones, a highly respectable physician, dated Baton Rogue. Louisiana, Dec. 28, 1833.—
The Arcanum had two powerful competitors, Swaim's Panacea, and Potter's Catholicon, which have been for years in circulation in this place. As far as I have had an opportunity of ascertaining its virtues, I believe the Arcanum to be superior to any article of the kind, yet offered to the public. 1 prescribed it in a case of Irritable Ulcer of three years standing, situated on the Malleolus Extrenus—the individual thus ing, situated on the Malleolus Extrenus—the individual thus afflicted was much emaciated and debilitated,—after one week's attendance, I put him upon the Arcanum, following the direc-

attendance, I put him upon the Arcanum, following the directions three bottles nearly effected a cure of the ulcer and bodt lifty health.

I prescribed it in several Mercurial and Syphilitic Affections, where it proved salutary. I am at this time trying the Arcanum on an individual, who has been laboring under Ulcerous affections of one of his legs, for fifteen years,—he has taken I bottle only, and it has produced that effect, he is sanguine in the belief, it will effect a permanent cure.

Extract of a letter received from a gentleman in Boston, who had suffered severely from indigestion for three years. 'During this time, I suffered very much from mental depression, constant pain in the head and breast, and side, sharp shooting pain over almost the whole system—the food that I are seemed to pass into my longs and there remain, giving me great pain as tended with a strong degree of heat. At times, I suffered so much from the pain of indigestion as to be confined to the bed for two or three days. During one of these most severe attacks I was induced by the advice of a friend to try your Vegetable Medicine. In the course of a few weeks I found myself much better, and by the time I had taken two bottles, considered myself wholly free from the complaint. I continue, on the cast feeling of any thing like indigestion or pressure on the atomach, to take about a table spoonful of it, which, in the course of a few hours completely restores me. It has had with ane a very wonderful effect, in strengthening the stomach and invigorating the whole system, and judging by my own case, I consider it in all diseases connected with the digestive organs, to he a very wonderful effect, in strengthening the stomach and invigorating the whole system, and judging by my own case, I consider it in all diseases connected with the digestive organs, I and as "cheap as the cheapest."
